"I Defied Government, Not Parliament" — Coyne

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada appeared before the Senate banking committee today for an extraordinary hearing of his case against the government which has a bill before Parliament to fire him.

Senator, reporters and spectators about 175 strong crowded into the small Senate railway committee room as Mr. Coyne started reading an opening statement.

Mr. Coyne, who walked bareheaded and alone up Parliament Hill, said at the outset that the issue is whether a governor should resign before the expiry of his statutory seven-year term at the government's request.

NO HESITATION

Mr. Coyne stood to give his evidence, speaking in an even and firm voice without a trace of nervousness or hesitation.

He described the legislation as a "bill of impeachment."

"There is not one accuser but a dozen, but not one would submit himself for examination to a committee of this Parliament," Mr. Coyne said.

There were few high offices of state from which the occupant could be removed except for misbehavior. And they could be removed only by Parliament, not the government.

Mr. Coyne said there is no allegation of misbehavior in his case. Evidence of misbehavior must be presented in such cases.

No charges had been laid. If one wanted to find the charges, one had to search "hundreds of pages" of the Commons record and speeches by Finance Minister Fleming and other cabinet ministers.

The governor said he was not there to assert his rights as an individual. History would record how those rights had been taken away.

ADmits DEFIANCE

"It has been said that I have defied this government. That is true."

He had defied the government as any man must "who is attacked in an arbitrary manner which threatens the integrity of an important institution" like the Bank of Canada.

But he had not defied Parliament. "That could only be said by one who thinks that the government is Parliament."

Parliament had the right to get the facts in this controversy, and since the government would not give those facts "I felt it was my duty to do so."

There had been "concealment of facts and misrepresentation of documents" by Mr. Fleming and other government members.

Traffic Death-Toll Zooms With Multiple Fatalities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Multiple-fatality accidents in Ontario and Alberta sent road tolls soaring during the week-end and water mishaps added to the count of accidental deaths.

A survey by The Canadian Press revealed 34 road fatalities across the country, 14 in Ontario, from 6 p.m. local times Friday to Sunday midnight.

Twelve drownings — four in Ontario, two each in Alberta, Newfoundland and Quebec, and one each in Saskatchewan and British Columbia — and eight various other fatalities toll to 54 deaths during the 54-hour period.

Quebec had six traffic deaths, Alberta eight, Saskatchewan and British Columbia two each, and Manitoba and Prince Edward Island one each. Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia remained free of traffic fatalities.

A British Columbia family of four died in a car-bus crash at Kelowna, Sunday. Another Alberta accident claimed three victims when a car went into a ditch near Fox Creek.

There were two triple fatalities. Quebecers were asphyxiated and two others died in falls. In Ontario, a man died of carbon monoxide poisoning and another was accidentally shot by his nephew. Two died in an Alberta plane crash.

The survey does not account natural deaths, industrial fatalities or known suicides.

LEGAL HANGOVER

Mid-Air Battle of Bottle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A vacationing Illinois janitor who caused a ruckus with a pocket knife aboard a crowded jetliner is causing a headache for authorities because of a legal no-man's land.

It appears the headache may require legislative relief from the United States Congress.

Joseph Newkirk, 60, of Argo, Ill., was arrested Saturday after threatening two persons aboard a United Air Lines flight carrying 118 passengers to Los Angeles from Chicago.

No one was injured, Newkirk, who at first told police he was a salesman, was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Investigators told this story: Shortly after takeoff from Chicago, Newkirk became enraged because a stewardess took away his whisky bottle. Later, as the plane was over Nevada, he became belligerent, pushed a stewardess and brandished his knife when a young marine private intervened.

DISARMED AND BOUND

Donald James Schwalbach, the marine, disarmed Newkirk. The janitor was bound by the crew and held captive in the lounge until Los Angeles police boarded the plane here.

After booking Newkirk, police discovered they had no jurisdiction over a crime allegedly committed over Nevada. They called the FBI and the Federal Aviation Agency.

The FBI pondered the problem — and said they'd have to discuss it with headquarters in Washington.

The FAA said it could not prosecute Newkirk on a criminal charge, but could charge him in a civil action with violating FAA drinking regulations aboard an airliner.

But assistant U.S. attorney Tom Sheridan said he knew of no federal statute covering passengers aboard a plane in interstate flight.

If Newkirk had damaged the jet, he could be held on a felony charge, authorities explained, but apparently no one can prosecute him for assaulting another person in interstate flight.

Four Of B.C. Family Die In Alta. Holiday Crash

WALSHT, Alta. (CP) — Four members of a British Columbia family were killed Sunday in a head-on crash of a car and a new school bus just west of this town.

The victims were from Quathiaski Cove, Quadra Island, about 120 miles northwest of Vancouver. They were: John Ernest Blenkin, 44, reported to be a provincial government employee; his wife, Marie Elizabeth and their daughters Marjorie, 13, and Patsy, 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Blenkin and daughter died in the crash. The other girl died in hospital.

Three occupants of the 20-passenger bus, being delivered from Lethbridge to the Swift Current school district, suffered minor injuries.

All from Lethbridge, they are George Stanley Dinu, 20, Larry Homulus, 26, and Olga Dresko, 20. Driver Dinu said he swung his wheel to the right as he saw the car approaching in his lane, and the car hit the left side of the bus.

Walsht is near the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary, 30 miles east of Medicine Hat.

HOTEL BLAZE

Woman Saves 26 Lives

PORT HARDY, B.C. (CP) — A woman ran through a flaming hotel here Sunday, smashing doors with a sledgehammer to rouse guests.

Three guests leaped from second-storey windows and others scrambled down rear fire escapes and over the roof of a shed to safety.

None of the 23 guests and three staff members in the 18-room Port Hardy Hotel was injured as the hotel was levelled.

The hotel, its beer parlor, cocktail lounge and cafe, owned by former Vancouver detective Jack Muir, was destroyed in this community on Vancouver Island, 220 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Mrs. Jean Perlin, operator of the hotel's cafe, said a loud explosion rocked the hotel about 7 a.m. Sunday as she started downstairs from her room to open the cafe.

"I ran back upstairs and screamed to my husband to get up and find out what was wrong," Mrs. Perlin said.

"When we came out of the room, the halls were all filled with smoke."

"I had a sledge hammer in my hand—I don't know how I got it—and I just ran down the halls banging on doors with it. I know I put it right through three of them."

Mrs. Perlin said most of the guests escaped with only the clothing they could grab. Some left the building in night clothes.

"About two minutes after we got out, the flames were shooting up the outside all around," she said. "It was hell—I don't want to go through that again."

B.C. GIRL GOES OVER WALL IN KINGSTON JAIL ESCAPE

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two women, one of whom escaped before and vowed she'd do it again, went over the wall of the federal prison for women here Sunday night.

Prison officials said Dorothy Mills, 18, of Drumheller, Alta., and Barbara Eisert, of Vancouver, 22, scaled the 18-foot wall with blankets inmates were permitted to take with them during the Sunday evening recreation period.

The younger girl, was sentenced to three years in 1960 for armed robbery and theft. She drew an additional six months last year for a similar escape, after which she was recaptured at her mother's home and said she'd get out again.

The Eisert girl was on a narcotics sentence.

KIDNAPPED GIRL

Footprints And Clothing Found In Desolate Mesa

MOAB, Utah (AP) — Small footprints and a bundle of clothing found on a desolate mesa spurred search parties today in the hunt for 15-year-old Denise Sullivan of Rockville, Conn., kidnapped a week ago by a man who killed her mother.

Despite the discovery, there seemed little chance that the girl could have survived six days in the scorching desert country. Sheriff John Stocks said "I still think she'll be found dead."

The Salt Lake Tribune said the bundle of clothing, a pair of men's gray work pants, some shorts and a red and brown shirt were wedged between rocks on Polar Mesa—an area northeast of here where the chief suspect in the kidnapping was reported to have stayed for three days after the July 4 abduction.

Abel B. Aragon, 35, winner of the Navy Cross for valor, shot himself to death last Friday night when officers stopped his car to question him. Investigators linked him to the slaying of Mrs. Jeannette Sullivan, 41, the wounding of a vacation companion, Charles Boothroyd, 55, also of Rockville, and the kidnapping of Denise.

Boothroyd is recovering from face wounds.

Premier Khrushchev and cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin watched side by side along with a crowd of 50,000 while the Soviet air force paraded a spectacular array of new craft at Moscow's Tushino airfield.

Western experts watching the show — the first the Russians have staged since 1958—said the United States has nothing to match several of the entries. These included a jet fighter that can light up a liquid rocket engine booster in flight to gain a tremendous rate of climb.

Disaster Strikes Off Coast Of Mozambique

LISBON — The Portuguese maritime ministry announced today 237 persons are dead or missing and presumed dead aboard the grounded and burning Portuguese ship Save at Lourenço Marques, Mozambique. Most were African Negro passengers.

The 2,037-ton transport was overturned. The coastal freighter Chaimite, the tug Sofia and other vessels stood by, but high seas made it impossible for them to approach the blazing wreck.

The ministry said there were 490 persons aboard the ship, including a 44-man crew, and that 253 were saved, some of them suffering injuries. Some of the passengers were troops, others were mine laborers.

The disaster struck near the Linde River estuary of northern Mozambique.

The Lusitania news agency said there was a blast in the engine room while rescue vessels were trying to take off the passengers. The ship was reported to have split in two. Gaping holes appeared in the sides. Metal twisted in the heat of the flames.

Four persons were seen momentarily hanging on the prow. Four others clutched a cable dangling from the ship.

Onlookers said some persons reached safety by lifeboat. One lifeboat was believed to have

Eichmann Given A Breather

By LIONEL WALSH

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — A haggard Adolf Eichmann today was granted a morning respite from the hammering cross-examination of Israeli Attorney-General Gideon Hausner.

Presiding Judge Moshe Landau announced cancellation of the morning session of Eichmann's trial because "the accused is unable to stand cross-examination as a result of his physical condition."

Hausner Friday launched a nerve-tearing examination of the former Nazi lieutenant-colonel who has been on trial since April 11 on charges of complicity in the mass murder of European Jews.

Judge Landau announced to the court that he had granted a request for an adjournment made by the defence in his chambers before the morning session.

Eichmann, looking more pale and sickly than usual, was led out of his bullet-proof glass cage after the judge's announcement.

A defence spokesman said later "there is nothing much wrong" with Eichmann.

"His nerves were rather strained after Friday and he did not feel well. It is quite understandable really."

Socreds See Dangerous Brush On Racial Unity

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—All Canadian political parties pride themselves on their own unity and never tire of telling how they are best qualified to unite the country.

Unity between English and French elements is considered vital to election success. So it was with some dismay that veteran Social Crediters witnessed a narrow and potentially dangerous brush with disunity at their national convention last week.

On the one hand, the party's Quebec wing was pressing for passage of a convention suggestion to the present federal government to distribute a $100 dividend payment to every Canadian to help spur the economy with increased purchasing power.

On the other hand were the English-speaking delegates from the West and Ontario throwing up procedural blocks, some arguing it would be economic suicide because old-time parties—unlike Social Credit—were incapable of changing the country's monetary system to make such a dividend workable without disrupting the economy.

HUDDLE SEPARATELY
The Quebecers gathered around the floor microphone at one side of the convention hall, the others around the mike on the other side. It was in the dying moments of a convention already running behind schedule. Many delegates were impatient to get home.

After more than an hour of procedural wrangling, an open split was averted by a sudden acceptance by the Quebec group of a suggestion from the other side that the matter be dumped into the lap of the party's national council.

There was an almost audible sigh of relief.

This throw back to the $25 dividend promised to Albertans in the hungry 1930s by the late William Aberhart, father of the Social Credit movement in Canada, was the most startling development of the convention.

Such proposals have prompted critics of the movement to gage it the "funny money" party.

TAKE MODERATE LINE
But at the convention it was the Western delegates—including 14 provincial cabinet ministers from Alberta and British Columbia—who adopted the moderate approach. The newer Quebec adherents to Social Credit appeared to have a more doctrinaire attitude on policy.

Some observers suggested the Quebec proposal—if adopted—would have been put to good use by Social Crediters in Quebec province, where there is a tendency to view government as a paternal influence that could easily hand out $100 to everyone.

The motion apparently had a dual motive—to embarrass the Conservative government, which obviously would not pay any $100 dividend, and to bolster the idea that a Social Credit government would pay such dividends.

SEE FRESH BACKING
Social Credit, claiming a resurgence of support across the country from all walks of life, could point at the convention to two instances of this:

1: The surprising strength of the Quebec voting delegation—based on five persons for each federal constituency—which numbered 238, biggest of any province by far.

2: The presence at the convention of a man named Philip T. Kelly, who told reporters he joined the party six months ago. Only four years ago, the 53-year-old Mr. Kelly was mines minister in the Ontario Progressive Conservative government. He was co-chairman of the legislature for Cochrane North from 1951 to 1958 and mines minister from 1952 until his resignation in 1957.

Mr. Kelly, whose name was linked with charges of profiteering in the Northern Ontario Natural Gas controversy about the time he left the legislature, told convention reporters he figures Social Credit is the party of the future.

He said it is winning new support daily, particularly from small business which he says stands to gain most from adoption of Social Credit principles and control of the monetary system.

BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

Famine Of Management Talent Due In Decade

Five or 10 years from now there will be tremendous shortage in Canada of management talent.

This is the prediction of Professor L. G. Macpherson, director of the school of business of Queen's University.

It is the reason why Queen's, and other Canadian universities, are expanding their programs of business training. And it is the reason why, as part of that program, 25 business executives are attending Queen's executive summer school at Kingston, Ont., during the period June 26 to July 18.

Prof. Macpherson attributes the coming management shortage to a combination of Canada's industrial expansion, the low birthrate of the 1930s, and the exceedingly complex nature of today's business world.

Management training by universities has been well developed in the United States. In Canada, too, it has fairly long roots, but in its present scope and in growing appreciation of its need it is in large measure a post-war development.

The need for management training arises both from growth of industry and the changed nature of its ownership.

The closely-held institution, owned by one man or family or small group, has given way to the widely-held company, in which many thousands of the general public are owners through purchase of shares on the stock market. And the owner-manager type has given way to a managerial class who do not own the companies they run, except to the relatively limited extent that they may

International Theatre Worried About Censors

VIENNA (AP)—The stage is public sessions. This: "The rights and duties of the stage director."

The situation has become much worse, the organization says in a report on trends around the globe.

The finding highlighted the ninth biennial congress of the ITI, a non-governmental group representing professional theatre workers in 43 countries.

Avoiding mention of specific trouble spots, the organization passed a resolution denouncing "discriminations and restrictions (which) reduce more and more the free circulation of dramatic works (and) . . . seriously hamper international understanding."

The declaration followed reports given in executive committee meetings and not made public. A possible hint, however, was the abstention of French and Turkish delegates from assenting to some portions of the complaint.

Participating in the theatrical summit session were actors, directors and writers from five Latin American lands, five Asian-Pacific, eight from Europe and 19 North Atlantic lands.

At the start of the conclave there was some expectation of thunderclaps—not because of the assortment of political opinions present (everyone was very behind the words for the play the night), but because of the central discussion topic for the

The Nakusp, with a capacity of 60 tons, will service the firm's 15-vessel fleet used in logging operations for its pulp and paper mill at Castlegar.

The drydock, built at New Westminster and shipped to the lake on three railway flat cars, took four weeks to assemble before the launching.

GORDON REBUTTED

CCFer Strongly Denies Theft Of CNR Document

OTTAWA (CP)—Douglas Fisher, vigorous Commons critic of CNR President Donald Gordon, said that he takes "strenuous objection" to a charge by Mr. Gordon that he had connived in the theft of a CNR document.

Mr. Fisher, CCF member for Port Arthur, also said in the Commons it was "pretty nonsensical" for the CNR president to have accused him of law-breaking in connection with a railway labor dispute in northern Ontario last year.

Mr. Fisher was referring to a clash between himself and gm. Gordon in the Commons railway committee last month.

He said it was because Mr. Gordon couldn't take criticism. The president apparently had thought Mr. Fisher was the central figure in attacks on him and came to the committee "well prepared to take a couple of rounds out of me."

Mr. Fisher said today that he was given the document in confidence by a person who had formerly worked in CNR trucking operations.

He said he doubts it was really stolen from the CNR. But he objected to Mr. Gordon's charge that he had connived in theft, or knew that the document was stolen.

He said the president's law-breaking stemmed from a situation last year when CNR employees in northern Ontario had been bitterly opposed to a railway proposal for a drastic change in freight operations.

A delegation which visited him here had told him they felt so strongly about it that they wouldn't go to work. But the delegation chairman had said that if they called a wildcat strike they might go to jail.

Mr. Fisher said he had told the men that if they felt strongly enough about it, they should be prepared to go to jail.

That, he said, was the basis for Mr. Gordon's charge of law-breaking.

The dispute had been settled by a compromise.

NUCLEAR TESTS

Counter-Blasts Possible Death-Knell Of Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some U.S. authorities think the latest exchange of charges between Russia and the United States indicates the Geneva negotiations for a nuclear weapons test ban may be at a dead end.

Officially, however, the United States is asking Russia to breathe new life into the negotiations that have dragged on for almost three years.

In Moscow Friday, the Soviet government accused the U.S. of trying to "justify" in the eyes of public opinion, the resumption of nuclear tests.

The U.S. fired back a charge that Russia was dodging the central issue of the negotiations—"whether the Soviet Union is now willing and prepared to reach an accord which would halt nuclear weapons tests under effective international controls."

The U.S. called on Russia to reverse its position and "join the United States and the United Kingdom in their determined efforts to bring an end to the testing of nuclear weapons."

WANTS TALKS MERGED
Soviet Premier Khrushchev has sought to merge the nuclear test ban talks with a proposed new multi-nation conference on general disarmament.

President Kennedy has rejected this proposal.

The two powers appear to be engaged in a campaign to fix the blame for failure of the prolonged Geneva talks, but neither will admit the conference has come to a dead end. Technically, it still is in session.

The Soviet note was presented to U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow Wednesday and made public by the Russians Friday.

It said the U.S. seeks excuses for "burning the bridges" to agreement on the prohibition of nuclear weapons tests.

In its reply, released here Friday afternoon, the U.S. said Russia apparently is worried "as indeed it should be by the world's reaction to its obstructive manoeuvring in Geneva."

"Accordingly," the U.S. statement said, "the Soviet note avoids, as much as possible, the central issue of halting nuclear tests."

The United States is convinced that this tactic on the part of the Soviet Union will not blind the world to the intransigence of the Soviet Union at the Geneva test ban conference.

The committee also recommended establishment of an Indian claims commission to settle long-standing controversies concerning Indian lands.

One of the main disputes is over an annual grant of $100,000 to British Columbia Indians, which they consider unsatisfactory.

Among the recommended changes was one to drop the term "enfranchisement" from the Indian Act. The committee said it was a misnomer since all Indians now have the right to vote. The word is used to indicate the process by which an Indian gives up his status as an Indian under the act.

The committee said that since provincial law can govern the use of intoxicants by Indians off their reservations, all existing liquor restrictions in the Indian Act should be deleted, "except that the right of possession and consumption on the reserve be granted only after the approval by a majority vote of the band."

CUT INTERFERENCE
The committee said its recommendations were designed to encourage Indian bands to assume more authority and responsibility, to cut federal government interference with band affairs, and to protect and encourage the cultural and historical benefits the Indians inherit from their ancestors.

Last year Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who was to officially open the Stampede, threw officials into a flap by arriving 24 hours ahead of schedule. He was hurriedly fitted into an earlier program.

This year transit workers and the city of Calgary failed to settle a wage dispute, and the possibility of a halt in public transportation threatened the week-long western exhibition. The issue still was in doubt late Sunday night with the Stampede hours away. A strike could be called as early as 5:30 p.m. today.

Meanwhile, another visitor from Ottawa is posing a problem for harassed officials.

HEES OPENS SHOW
George Hees, minister of trade and commerce, is here to open the Stampede. The minister wants to have a shot at riding a bronc in the stampede.

This, as a number of veterans will tell you, is not easy. As one Stampede executive facetiously put it: "We wouldn't want anything to happen to George because he has to open the show."

Rather than have him test his skill at a game only professionals try, the Stampede men likely will suggest that the athletically-minded cabinet minister settle for riding a single high-spirited steed in the parade.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hees are accomplished riders and they'll be the first such guests in years to forsake the comfort of a convertible over the rough ride.

Meanwhile, the standard ingredients that built the Stampede into a world-famous show are being mixed again.

TO DEFEND TITLE
Calgary's Orville Burkinshaw, best of the chuckwagon daredevils last year, defends his Canadian title against 35 other rigs in a nighty scramble for a record $28,000 in cash prizes.

The great games of the North American rodeo circuit will ride and rope each afternoon on their way to another $20,000 in cash, plus a return of $20,000 in entry fees.

Calgary's International livestock show, heart of the original exhibition, out of which the Stampede grew, has a record entry and offers prize money of $40,500, also the largest ever.

Capitol City Up In Arms Over Tombstone Episode

VICTORIA (Special to The Courier)—Once again your capital city is embroiled in controversy about Ross Bay Cemetery.

The city fathers want to tear up the historic tombstones, level the graves and turn the whole area into a park, thus desecrating dedicated ground.

Historians are up in arms; they point out that much of the history of British Columbia is written into stone and marble at Ross Bay. There are, in this province, many historically valuable cemeteries, but Ross Bay, naturally, being the capital, contains the bones of more important people than any other.

The provincial government should show the way by restoring and maintaining the graves of Sir Joseph Trutch, first lieutenant-governor of B.C. after confederation in 1871, and the graves of all lieutenant-governors and premiers that need care. Some are maintained by the families.

Perhaps, in various parts of British Columbia today, are people whose family graves are in Ross Bay; these people might help by restoring and maintaining those graves.

Ross Bay is filled with many interesting stones. As well as history, human nature is carved into its stone and marble. There is the grave of John

Dean, a crochety old bachelor, who, when he was 80, bought a plot at Ross Bay, marched a stonecutter out and had him engrave his tombstone, thusly: "It is a rotten world; its saving grace is the artlessness of the young, and the wonders of the sky."

As he neared his 90's, John Dean fell to a feud with the politicians, all of whom he thought were crooked. In fury with them, he one day marched his stonecutter out to the cemetery again, and, by asterisk, had carved in, after "It is a rotten world", these words: "Artful politicians are its bane."

John Dean, having thus carried his feud with the politicians to the grave, died in 1943, when he was 93.

We who would preserve historic cemeteries are not ghoulish nor morbid. A cemetery is a friendly place. There is nothing fearful or spooky about it, though the modern tendency is to pretend that death does not exist.

In any event, what Joseph Howe said long ago still holds true today: "A wise nation preserves its records, gathers up its monuments, decorates the tombs of its illustrious dead, repairs its great public structures, and fosters national pride and love of country by perpetual reference to the sacrifices and glories of the past."

CHERRY PICKING SEASON UNDERWAY AT WEEKEND

There was a fairly good movement of cherries into packinghouses of Kelowna at the weekend, L. R. Stephens of Okanagan Federated Shippers reported today.

He said Lamberts should reach their peak about Wednesday of this week. Penticton's peak was reached this weekend.

The movement began Friday night, Mr. Stephens said, and continued into Sunday. Some light packing was done Saturday and Sunday.

Some splitting was observed, due to the rains earlier last week, "but nothing serious," said Mr. Stephens. "The quality is generally good."

View Tower Lookouts Re-Wired

New frequency modulation radio sets in ranger towers were reprogrammed as a safety measure this past weekend.

The measure was taken as reports came in from across the province that three Forest Service lookouts were struck by lightning during the past two weeks.

Bert Hewlett, ranger in charge of the Kelowna ranger area said that three lookout towers located on Black Knight, Terrace and Little White mountains now had additional groundings.

In each case of lightning strike, the occupants were not severely injured. The latest strike was at Greenstone Mountain, 20 miles southwest of Kamloops Thursday. In that strike, George Irving, 45, was knocked unconscious and his windows shattered.

A piece of window moulding was driven through a thick plywood wall and cast iron stove lids went flying.

When Irving came to, he put out a small fire and drove to Kamloops where he is recovering from face burns.

The $3,000 lookout stations are equipped with standard lightning arrestors consisting of a copper post on the roof connecting to copper wires leading down the four corners of the buildings to the ground.

Mr. Nelson, provincial forest supervisor, said he does not know why the lightning in the cases of the three struck lookouts did not hit the posts and be carried to the ground without damaging the structure.

New Cases Of TB At 574

OTTAWA (CP)—New active and reactivated cases of tuberculosis reported in Canada in April numbered 574, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today.

This brings the total for the January-April period to 2,221. Some 84 per cent of the cases were in this category.

End Ugly Wiring Overhead Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—The Royal Architectural Institute of Canada has launched a campaign to rid Canada's cities of ugly overhead wiring.

The institute announced today that chapters across the country will hit at local and provincial governments with a flood of letters seeking action on clearing the country of the tangle of wire overhead.

QUEEN CANDIDATE

An adopted daughter of Orchard City, Diane Allington, hails from Kelowna, and "all hail" because she picked Kelowna.

Diane is a full-time employee of a local bank since her arrival last September.

She is well known for her work with the Canadian School of Ballet here in Kelowna. She practices from 10 to 12 hours a week, and a large portion of her ambitions are in this field.

She plans on studying ballet in England and hopes to leave next year.

She represents Gyros of Kelowna in Lady-of-the-Lake competition.

At home, Diane has three younger sisters. "Nine pups and six kittens." Here in Kelowna she stays with three girls and two kittens.

Diane is also interested in another artistic field, writing. She was editor of the local school (Penticton High School) paper, and loves cooking and likes sewing.

Union And Labor To Meet

A sub-committee representing labor and the fruit and vegetable industry in the Okanagan will meet in Kelowna Friday to redraft several sections of agreements already in effect between both groups.

This was decided at the second meeting of the groups held at the weekend in Penticton. James Currie, business agent for the union, spoke on behalf of the employees while Kay Wynn represented the packing houses.

Agreement was also reached on several points concerning non-cost items, but officials did not release details.

Old Timers Donate To Fund

WINFIELD (Correspondent)—A motion calling for a donation to the gift fund for the retiring provincial secretary of the Old Age Pensioners Association was passed at the last monthly meeting of the local branch.

The 12 members present voted to donate to the fund for Mrs. Elsie Buckley.

Also at the meeting, an invitation was given to all members to attend the Vernon Old Age Pensioners annual picnic to be held Aug. 28 at Polson Park.

Following the meeting, which was held in Memorial Hall, a social period followed and refreshments served. The association will not meet again until December.

Red Cross Safety Rules A "Must" For Waterplay

As the number of swimmers steadily increase during the hot weather, water safety is more and more becoming a matter of prime importance.

There is some controversy, however, as to what is the best method of artificial respiration as opposed to the more familiar practices including the Holger-Nielsen and Schafer methods.

The mouth-to-mouth method, proven much more effective than other methods, is not as widely known. It was introduced to the western world by the ancient Egyptians, but use of swimming and boating fell into disuse in Europe through many centuries.

The method was re-introduced to America about a century ago, and was most dramatically used by a doctor at the assassination of President Lincoln. The method added hours to the president's life.

Instruction is available in this method during any first aid course.

The Canadian Red Cross Society, in their manual of water safety for this year, gives many good pointers on how to make use of swimming and boating to the greatest possible enjoyment and yet preserve maximum safety.

One of the first of these points is that supervised areas should always be used for water fun.

"Lacking this," says the manual, "go to one which you know is safe, but do not go alone."

Additional points on water depth, weeds, currents, under-tows, and water temperature are handled. This last is one of the problems with Lake Okanagan. The manual states that the most comfortable temperature for swimming is between 70 and 80 degrees.

If the water is very warm, it will tire you quickly, and if it is cold, the shock may cause cramps.

On the subject of boating, the manual states that one of the most important things to remember is that boats float. Even with an outboard motor, it will not sink and it will also support its proper number of passengers.

If the boat should turn, "hang on—never try to swim for shore no matter how close it may appear."

On lifejackets, "it is now required by law that all power-driven boats carry one lifejacket per passenger of the type bearing the official stamp of approval of the Department of Transport."

In case a lifejacket of the canvas covered kind bears two official stamps, one giving approval and the other not, obey the one which does not approve the belt.

The one rule taught over and over again throughout the manual, apart from any other, "Learn To Swim. And learn to swim properly, so that you never need be afraid of the water."

"Expert advice and instruction are available at most times and places in water safety classes—use them!"

Social Credit Party Remains Western Group

The Social Credit party has a new leader in the federal field, Mr. R. N. Thompson of Red Deer, Alberta. He was elected at the first of two party conventions to be held this month, the other being that of the temporarily called "New Party".

The new Social Credit leader, an educationist and chiropractor, who spent fifteen years in Ethiopia, has been a Social Credit enthusiast since the party of monetary reform swung into action in the early thirties in Alberta.

As a twenty-year-old, he caught the fervor of Social Credit ideas, which are spiked with evangelical flavor, when William Aberhart was whipping the party into shape in Alberta. He returned to Canada from Africa in 1958, just after the Conservative election landslide had wiped out all nineteen Social Credit members in the House of Commons. He was elected national Social Credit president. As party leader, he succeeds Solon Low, who resigned as party leader last fall because of ill health.

With no members in the House of Commons, he heads a party which, as the saying goes, has no place to go but up. While the convention voting figures were not made public, it is said that in the balloting, he barely nosed out Real Caouette, Quebec party leader.

It may be that the few votes which separated the two men will have significance in Social Credit progress in the next few years. Had a Quebecois been elected party leader, it is possible it might have meant several seats in that province in the next election. As it is another westerner heads the party and it is unfortunate but true that the east does not look with kindness upon leaders from the west. This is particularly true in the case of a splinter party striving to become a national party. Social Credit strength now lies in the west and under western leadership it probably will stay there.

Time's Propaganda

This newspaper has refrained from commenting on the O'Leary royal commission report on Canadian magazine publications. While its sympathies were with the Canadian publications, there were certain aspects of the report which we hesitated to accept. However, the recent activities of Time magazine officials has served to solidify our opinion.

Time has been conducting a pressure campaign which it appears to us verges on misrepresentation. A Time spokesman has been quoted as saying: "There is need in the free world for more, not less, communication among its citizens. . . the precedent which this (O'Leary) report would set could rapidly lead to restrictions on the press of Asia, Africa and Latin America."

Time obviously here is saying that the magazine would be barred from Canada, if the royal commission's recommendations are acted upon. This is far from the truth. The royal commission made no such recommendation. All American and European magazines will be as available to the Canadian reader as they ever have been. Time would continue to come into Canada in the future just as it did before the establishment of its so-called "Canadian edition."

The commission did make certain recommendations which if implemented, would affect the Canadian edition of the magazine, but it made no recommendation which even inferred that Time itself should be banned from the country.

The real point at issue is whether or not Canadian publications are to be allowed to survive; whether Canadians are to have a voice at all; or whether the national periodical field in this country is to be left to American magazines' overflow circulation. Indeed, it is a question as to whether news and views about Canadian public affairs, our social life, our nationalism are to be shaped by Canadians or presented with an American slant dominated by self-interest.

One can't really object to Time doing a little screaming. Anyone—especially a foreigner uninterested in the welfare of a country—would scream if he suddenly saw he was in the position of losing $2,896,860 profit over a five-year period. For that was what the profits of Time's Canadian edition amounted to. Of course, the profits would not have been as large had the Canadian edition of the magazine been assessed a normal share of the editorial costs, which it wasn't.

Time is quite in the American fashion organizing a lobby in Ottawa to bombard the Canadian members of parliament. The magazine is currently bombarding newspapers and the subscribers of the magazine with the same type of propaganda. It is to be hoped that the results of Time's campaign will be noteworthy for their paucity.

taken up very earnestly the question of improvement of yield and quality of potatoes by the use of certified seed.

50 YEARS AGO

July, 1911
The council reverted last week to Saturday night as the date of their regular meeting, much to the distaste of the weary newspaper scribes, to whom turning out on that evening seems like a hardship after the labors of the week and the long hours of journalistic work, extending frequently past midnight.

In Passing

You shouldn't believe everything you hear—it's bad enough to have to listen to it.

When someone says, "Stop me if you've heard this one," we are always tempted to ask, "How?"

A lick town is a place where a person can double-park with impunity.

So often one sees references to "the true facts". Can anyone give us an example of an untrue fact?

The reason the world's in such a terrible stew . . . Is that people won't do what they ought to do.

Believing that bad luck is more likely to happen to you than to the other fellow is a mixture of inverted egotism and superstition.

At the age of five months a California boy is whistling at girls. This seems to be the first case on record of a wolf in swaddling clothes.

"Gorillas are kind to one another, and they never fight," says a naturalist. This is sound evidence that if man descended from the monkey family, he certainly didn't descend from the gorilla branch of it.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Nowhere, either with more quiet or more freedom from trouble, does a man retire than into his own soul.

ON PARADE TO MARK QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY

Troops of the Brigade of Guards display the parade-ground precision and bearing which have made their regiments world famous as they march past Her Majesty

Queen Elizabeth II. The march past, marking this year's Trooping the Color ceremony on Horse Guards Parade, London, marks the sovereign's official birthday.

Each year, the colors of the trooped in turn. This year, Guards' foot regiments are the honor fell to the 2nd Battalion Scots Guards.

INSIDE YOU AND YOURS

Help For A Sick Kidney

With pills that paralyze kidneys, you can flush high blood pressure and heart failure down the drain!

How? In each kidney thousands of filters strain fluid squeezed from tangled knots of tiny blood vessels. Every day, 27 gallons pour through these filters into magic microscopic tubing.

Here, invisible chemical magnets draw minerals back into the blood stream. Water has to flow back, too, to keep your blood from thickening into reddish sludge.

Like doctors, each magnet is a specialist. Medicines that paralyze key magnets can lock extra salt and water inside the tubing. Trapped, this fluid has to pour out the kidneys and down the drain.

EASILY LOST

And so you can easily lose that extra salt and water which builds up in the system when you have high blood pressure or heart failure. As the bladder works overtime, blood pressure plummets, swelling melts and you can catch your breath once again.

You probably recognize these kidney-paralyzing drugs as old-time "kidney stimulants". The chemicals in coffee and tea are two of the oldest.

But no pill ever worked so well with so few side effects as today's thiazide medicines. They can ease that heaviness and tension brought on by female hormones just before each menstrual flow or during those nine expectant months.

Glaucoma's painful pressure eases when fluid from that jam-packed eyeball floats down the drain.

STAGGERING PREVENTED

Daily thiazide pills can dry up water on the brain and keep you from staggering like a drunken sailor when extra fluid is crammed into tiny bony tubing inside the ear (Meniere's disease). When pressure builds in these semi-circular tubes, you can't walk a straight line.

Because thiazides are so safe, doctors sometimes prescribe them to fatten morale during hard days of dieting. Now you, too, can lose up to 5 pounds in the first three days—even if it is all salt and water!

Struggle On Tax Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Are tax measures the sole prerogative of the elected representatives of the people under Canada's system of parliamentary government?

That's the basis of the current struggle between the Commons and the Senate over a government tariff measure.

The Commons, through the Conservative government, contends it has the sole right to levy taxation—and the Senate, in which the Liberals have the majority, lacks authority to amend a tax measure in any way.

The Senate concedes that the Commons has the sole right to levy taxation. But the Liberal majority contends that in amending the tariff bill to permit appeals to the tariff board against decisions of the revenue minister it was not in any way infringing on tax rights.

HOUSES AT ODDS

The situation now is that the Senate amended a Commons bill and sent it back to the Commons. The Commons rejected the amendment and sent the bill back to the Senate, where it comes up today.

The supremacy of the Commons in taxation laws is a principle which the United Kingdom House of Commons established beyond question in 1911 after 233 years of struggles with the House of Lords.

The Senate of Canada, whose members are appointed by the government of the day for life—long terms, and the appointed and hereditary House of Lords, are among the few remaining legislative bodies of their kind in the democratic world.

OTTAWA REPORT

More Than a Dedication

When Prime Minister John Diefenbaker opened the museum at Batoche, Saskatchewan, on June 28, it seemed to me that he did more than dedicate a national historic site. "Every foot, every yard of this ground is familiar to me," the huge audience was told by the PM from the prairies, who has relived history so frequently in his imagination, on that site near his childhood home. There was no TV thrilling children with battlesmoke adventures in those days; no conkhut reminding boys of foreign frontiersman Dave Crockett. But young John Diefenbaker has his own real western hero, Gabriel Dumont.

Through the years, Mr. Diefenbaker's friends have often heard him talk of that man. He describes how he used to see him display his shooting skill, tossing an old can into the air and holding it bang! bang! bang! He describes the fascination of a strange prairie in his grey hair. He talks of the prairie, the greatest hunter of the prairie, who year after year was chosen to lead the buffalo hunt, and who in one great hunt killed 100,000 buffalo by stealthily steering them over a bluff. He boasts Dumont as the greatest of all western fighters.

LITTLE KNOWN ELSEWHERE
Outside Saskatchewan, few know of Dumont, unless they have read of him as a middle-aged plainsman who was a trick shot in Buffalo Bill's circus troupe.

"But I knew Gabriel Dumont," the Prime Minister told his audience at Batoche. "I knew Gabriel Dumont the great buffalo hunter, the master strategist, the man of Indian origin who outthrew even the great Tecumseh as a finer military genius than any other man of that origin in either of the Americas."

Our history books seldom mention him, although Professor A. R. M. Lower's classic "Colony to Nation" says of the rebellion of 1885:

"Louis Riel returned and put himself at their head, but his effective fighting leader was Gabriel Dumont . . . the government sent out a large force of militia . . . these troops, after losing nearly all the skirmishes to the rebels, crushed them by sheer weight. Dumont fled and Riel surrendered."

Dumont, although prosaically he operated the local ferry, was a leader among the Metis of French-Indian descent who peopled the settlement of Batoche, on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River. When the plough of the English-Canadians, breaking up the prairie of the Indians and Metis, threatened Batoche as it had destroyed the similar Red River settlement 15 years earlier, it was Dumont who besought Louis Riel to return from exile and lead another uprising.

FIGHT FOR OLD WEST

But Dumont, the great guerrilla leader, undertook the military leadership. In 1885 he successfully led several forays, in one of which a bullet ploughed a near-fatal furrow across his scalp to create that strange parting in his hair; but in the end his force was cannonaded into defeat in the last ditch of the Batoche rifle pits. Riel surrendered, to be hanged six months later; Dumont escaped across the border, was for some years one of Colonel "Buffalo Bill" Cody's stars, and finally returned to Batoche to live quietly—met and admired by at least one English-Canadian boy—until his death in 1906.

Mr. Diefenbaker was visibly moved when dedicating the Batoche site. He referred with respect to "the sad little huddle of tall slender crosses" visible in the graveyard on a nearby hill—the last resting place of the Metis killed in the last battle fought on Canadian soil. Finally on that hot June afternoon, he walked over to pay his respects bareheaded beside Gabriel Dumont's grave, whence he gazed out over the site of his ferry and the bluff where he killed the buffalo. By this act, it seemed, the last man to take up arms against the Crown in Canada, the real leader of the Riel uprising, was finally rehabilitated and recognized.

U.K. OPINION

New Town Pushes Farm Family Out

By M. MCINTYRE HOOD
Special London (Eng.) Correspondent

For The Daily Courier

STEVENAGE, England—The growth of the new town of Stevenage has encroached so much on agricultural land that farmers are looking for fresh acres farther afield where they are less likely to be afflicted by the march of modern progress. This was the reason for a wholesale move made by farmer John Price, 42, his wife Beryl and their two children from their Herefordshire farm to a new location in Wales. In a specially chartered entire train, they moved their household belongings, farm equipment and their livestock overnight from near Stevenage to their new farm at New Quay, Cardiganshire, Wales.

It was a large scale operation, taking a train of 38 coaches and freight cars. On it were loaded all their furniture, 30 Guernsey cattle, 20 pigs, 12 cuts, two dogs, 50 tons of new-mown hay and tractor and other machinery weighing nearly 20 tons.

BUSY LAST DAY

The last day on the old farm was a busy one. All the machinery had to be dismantled ready for shipping by train. The last job of the Prices was to carry out the afternoon milking of the cows, and take them to the train. Then the family moved out of their dwelling at Toller's Farm, Aston, which has been their home for the last 15 years.

The next morning, after a train journey of 14 hours, this motley train-load arrived at the new farm of 140 acres on the Welsh coast. And the first thing to be done on arrival was to feed the cows and get on with the morning milking. Not a single working hour of operations was lost by this all-in-one method of removal from one farming area to another.

WHOLE FARM BOUGHT

The Prices have been losing acreage from their farm, piece by piece, to Stevenage New Town for several years. On the last occasion when the development corporation asked for more of the land, Mr. Price, taking advantage of a section of the New Towns Act, made the corporation buy the whole farm, and then announced: "We are clearing out." Mr. Price said: "We don't feel bitter about it, but it is virtually impossible for a farm to operate next door to a new town. My farm has become more like a park, with people trampling everywhere, breaking down hedges, tampering with machinery and letting the cows out of their fields. We have to move for our own good."

The Prices' children, Vanessa, 19, and Tony, 17, are both going to the University of Wales to take degrees in agriculture.

In planning his move, Mr. Price said he found chartering a train was the most economical way of moving everything over to Wales.

Hive Of Activity

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Perched on a hill in the bush 50 miles south of here are what appear to be two king-sized toolstoils. They occupy 200 square yards of ground, ringed by a fence patrolled day and night by armed guards.

Inside the fence, men work on instruments under strong lights. Ringing telephones, buzzing generators and clacking teletype machines provide a noisy background.

This is Ramore, a DEW Distant Early Warning line base.

More than 200 servicemen and 22 civilians keep the radar station operating 24 hours a day. They work eight hours at a stretch, spending off-duty hours at the nearby military base or towns "outside."

JOINT EFFORT

The Red Ensign and the Stars and Stripes are flown side by side at Ramore, an integrated base manned by Canadian and U.S. servicemen and under direct responsibility to the Ottawa sector of the North American Air Defence Command. Ramore was built at a cost of $6,000,000 in 1953 and was ranked operational in January, 1958.

The highly-trained personnel work in close co-operation with 41 other bases in the Pine Tree line, one of the three major radar setups. Fighter pilots are ready to take off from NORAD bases within minutes of an alarm from any of these radar sites of the detection of an unidentified aircraft.

Day and night, seven days a week, the men make the 11-mile trip into the bush to go on watch. But when the duty period is ended, life in the self-contained camp provides some opportunity for relaxation. Tennis, bowling, league basketball and fishing are popular activities.

Born in Hamilton, the daughter of Arthur W. White, Helen Graham says she is vitally interested in her husband's business affairs, which include chairmanship of the board of Canadian Collieries Resources Limited, vice-presidency of Union Steamships and directorships of the Bank of Nova Scotia, National Trust Company and Sack's Brewery. Since 1946, with Mrs. Graham's blessing, hundreds of charitable organizations have brought thousands of guests into the house and grounds. Once she attended all the catered parties, but lately has relinquished that role.

And Mrs. Graham, charming, chaste, a millionaire's wife, was there to advise and direct—a capacity that has made her socially famous in Vancouver.

"We believe in sharing what we have not only with the family, but with the community," she says.

Strikingly attractive, good-humored, often ebullient, Mrs. Graham is a youthful-looking woman who presides over a family of 14 and 37 grandchildren.

Her parties make the 20-room Graham home a focus for fun and community service.

MORE THAN 1,000

Around the corner from the oversize, heated swimming pool—where bananas grow next to orchids in a glass arborium—is a vast, comfortably furnished recreation room has on occasions accommodated, with an overflow on the terrace, more than 1,000 for a party.

Once a week as many of the Grahams as can be mustered gather in the same room to watch a feature movie.

The Grahams moved to North-west Marine Drive in 1946 and established their city showplace, built with money from a fortune Mr. Graham amassed in an eastern sugar company and other ventures. Now semi-retired, Mr. Graham remains a director of many industrial and financial concerns across Canada.

On holiday trips to the Orient and Middle East, Mrs. Graham has gathered exotic furnishings and miniatures that fill a large living room. The history of Japan looks down from walls partly finished in rich silkwork; jade is arranged inside glass cases; there are chests, chairs, lamps and tables from Japan, China, Tibet and Syria.

St. Paul's United Church Scene Of Pretty Wedding

St. Paul's United Church, Kelowna, was beautifully decorated with red roses, for the evening double-ring wedding ceremony on July 1 at 5 p.m. of Jacqueline Louise, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bentley, North Surrey, to Robert Clarence Johnson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Johnson, Westbank, with Rev. D. M. Perley officiating, and the organist was Mrs. A. P. Pettipiece.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor-length gown of tiered white nylon net and Chantilly lace, posed over white satin, over a hooped crinoline. The bodice of Chantilly lace and net, featured lily-point sleeves, with scalloped neckline and was buttoned down the back with tiny satin buttons. Her chapel length veil was of nylon net, edged with lace, and was held in place by an iridescent sequin and jeweled coronet, and she carried a trailing bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley. For something old, she borrowed a hankie from her great grandmother, and wore a blue garter.

The bride's sister Sharon of North Surrey was maid of honor, and wore a ballerina-length gown of shocking pink nylon over taffeta, with vee neck, softly overdressed waist, and full skirt with a coronet headpiece, and carried a bouquet of white carnations, with matching ribbons. The bridesmaid was the groom's sister Elaine Johnson of Kamloops, with a gown and bouquet similar in every way to the maid of honor, and they each wore the bride's gift, of a pearl necklace. The bride's cousin, little Sharon Neal of Rutland, was flower girl wearing a pale yellow nylon dress, with the bride's gift of a pearl drop necklace, and she carried a basket of white daisies. The ring bearer was the bride's brother, Brian Bentley of North Surrey.

The best man was Mr. Bruce Fenton of Westbank, and assisting him was Mr. Don Short of Salmon Arm. The ushers were the groom's brother, Mr. Art Johnson and Mr. Pat Riggs, both of Westbank.

After the ceremony over 120 guests attended a reception in the Riviera Room at the Capri Motor Inn, which was beautifully decorated with pink, blue and white streamers and bells. The mother of the bride received the guests in a smart figured, bronze and gold nylon sheath, with matching duster. She wore white accessories and carried a white jewelled handbag, with bronze green embroidery, and wore a corsage of white carnations.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with yellow roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom, surrounded by yellow tulle. The table was decorated by two crocheted baskets (made by the bride's grandmother), filled with white and red roses. Mr. Clarence Riggs of Westbank, the bride's cousin, acted as master of ceremonies, and also proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded, and Mr. Don Short of Salmon Arm proposed the toast to the bridesmaids. A telegram was read from Mr. H. Zakrisson in Sweden, a school chum of the groom's father.

Following the reception a dance was held until 12 o'clock and later the parents of the bride and groom entertained at their home in Westbank.

Included in the out-of-town guests were: the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harry Gratland and son Alan from Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. J. Harnden from Summerland; Mr. and Mrs. E. Rangers, Mrs. B. Johnson from Kamloops; Mrs. Anna Lowery and Mr. Walter Johnson, from Towers Ranch, Hope-Princeton Highway; Mr. Syd Fish and Mrs. B. Johnson with Wayne and Joan from Prince George; Mr. and Mrs. Moberly and Steve, Mrs. K. Devine and Herman Fodge from Saskatchewan; and Mrs. Hazel Drought from New Westminster.

For a honeymoon, travelling south of the border, the bride changed to a pale pink suit, with embroidered flowers, and a pink hat. Her accessories were white.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace and the bride's gift to the groom was an Alaska black diamond cuff link set.

The bride did not throw her bouquet, but presented it to her grandmother, Mrs. R. Neal, of Westbank.

They will take up residence in Westbank on their return.

Congratulations to local students of the Dr. Knox High School who were recognized during the Awards Day Ceremony. They were Skeena and Marjorie Ferworm, Marlene Macdonald, Mayann Price, Morton Hicks, Larry Hallman and Ina Pooley.

Farewell Party Is Surprise For Winfield Family

Twenty-five friends from the parish of St. Edward's gathered at the home of Mrs. F. J. Ratcliffe and family to honor them with a complete surprise party to bid them farewell; the Ratcliffe family plan to move and take up residence in Kelowna soon.

Mrs. L. Haber pinned a lovely corsage on Mrs. Ratcliffe; she was also given a bouquet of beautiful flowers.

Father Norman Kenney of Vernon, who is the parish priest, bade farewell to the family and said how much they would be missed in the parish. He thanked Mrs. Ratcliffe for being organist at St. Edward's Church for the past seven years, and for helping with the choir work.

Mrs. H. LeBlanc, president of the Catholic Women's League on their behalf presented Mrs. Ratcliffe with a rubber plant complete with planter and stand.

During the evening a sing-song was held, which finished up with the singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The evening ended with the visiting ladies serving wonderful refreshments.

Special Trade

About 85 per cent of woollens and 95 per cent of worsteds in the United Kingdom's wool textile industry are made in Yorkshire.

One dieter complains that when she eats breakfast she feels hungry at lunch. That could be true, because the body is working efficiently. However, a moderate lunch will satisfy. Be sure to include a protein at the noon meal. . . cottage cheese, 1/2 cup, or lean meat or fish. If a sandwich is the mainstay, have the protein filling thick, and the bread thinly sliced. One homemaker helped her husband to bring his weight down by packing in his lunch box an extra slice of lean meat . . . but without the extra slices of bread.

Zero hour for many dieters is apt to be late afternoon. It's an excellent plan to cut ahead of hunger by having a purposeful pick-up between 3 and 4 in the afternoon. A pick-up at this hour serves to maintain blood sugar level and prevents energy lag.

The pick-up should not exceed 110 calories. This can be a glass of skim milk or buttermilk, or orange juice, hot tea and a wedge of cheese; or a slice of high protein bread; or a half glass of the formula diet.

A satisfying dinner can be planned within 400 to 450 calories—lean meat, a small potato or slice of bread, a green vegetable, sliced tomatoes, and low calorie pudding or fruit (if desired).

The science of nutrition really has taken the hunger and the guesswork out of dieting to reduce.

WHITE CROSS CENTRE OPEN FOR BUSINESS

One of the highlights of the summer in Vernon and District was the opening Friday of the White Cross Centre at

Association for the rehabilitation of the mentally ill and emotionally disturbed people. Shown in the recreation room of the centre are Vernon branch president Mrs. Alleen

Coyne Outlines His Case

Mr. Coyne said the government has not yet accepted any responsibility for monetary policy of the Bank of Canada. It was apparent that in the last four years the government did not have a monetary policy "other than a tacit agreement with the bank's policy."

Parliament had not provided, Mr. Coyne said, that the government should resign, just because the government asked him to, without giving reasons. If that were so, it would mean the government would hold office "during pleasure."

What was important was that Parliament had given the government certain responsibilities and powers to assure that he "shall not lightly be made subject to the whim of the minister of finance or the political expediencies of the government of the day."

He said the government would have "a duty to resign and make a public statement" of his position if the government formulated policy which the governor could not in good conscience carry out.

But he said the Diefenbaker government has not developed a monetary policy in the four years it has been in office.

He said the Bank of Canada Act may be deficient in not saying that the government of the day must take final responsibility for the bank's monetary policy, whether the government wishes to acknowledge that or not.

SUGGESTS CHANGE

Perhaps the bank act should be amended so that it would be similar to the Bank of England Act.

The Bank of England act provided that the chancellor of the exchequer could give written directions to the bank.

Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot (L-Quebec) asked whether Mr. Coyne had seen an article in the Canadian Geographic Magazine which said the chancellor approaches the governor of the Bank of England "with deference."

Mr. Coyne laughed and said: "That is another practice we don't follow in this country."

The governor said the government always wants a scapegoat available so that any scapegoat can be discarded for another.

Mr. Coyne said that in asking for his resignation May 30 the government apparently did not want to risk having him resign on a question of principle and make his reasons public.

Instead, the government had adopted the design of seeking to extract a resignation without a policy issue arising — to have him quit quietly as though he were no longer interested in the bank, or had admitted errors which he wanted hushed up, or feared the consequences that would follow if he didn't resign. Senator Pouliot asked Mr. Coyne to repeat that sentence — "It's a nice phrase." The governor did so.

He said that to achieve this, the government charged him in private with wrongful conduct to intimidate him.

Mr. Coyne said the government told the bank's board of directors its mind was made up and that it would hold no further discussions with him.

The directors were told they must ask for his resignation — "do the government's work for them" — and they did, passing a resolution June 13 at a Quebec

City meeting asking for his resignation.

Mr. Coyne said the interests of the bank and of future governors would suffer even more if the issues, and the government's conduct, "had been allowed to remain concealed behind a cloak of silence and dignity."

UPHOLD PRINCIPLES

"It does not matter what happens to James Coyne — but it does matter that certain principles must be upheld, or at any rate fought for, or we will have no principles left on which to rely in the future."

He said it is true the argument between himself and the government since May 30 has lacked dignity.

Mr. Gordon's future and named new CNR directors.

CCF MPs Arnold Peters, Timiskaming, and Frank Howard, Skeena, wasted no time in firing the opening fusillade of what could become a long, drawn-out battle on divorce.

Shortly after the Commons rules committee proposed doing away with debate in the Commons on divorce bills, Mr. Peters and Mr. Howard issued a press statement calling the suggestion "shameful and disgraceful."

They said the proposal, tabled by Speaker Roland Michener, would "sanction the dishonesty and hypocrisy which now exists in divorce cases" and accused the government of "sweeping perjury and collusion under the rug."

At present divorce petitions from Quebec and Newfoundland, which have no divorce courts, are initially passed in the Senate then referred to the Commons and its private bills committee for final approval.

Veterans Minister Churchill, government house leader, announced the government seeks to obtain the Commons' approval for the measure this week.

Although Speaker Michener said the all-party rules committee submitted its report unanimously, it appears the CCF at least do not share this view and are going to make a fight of it.

If they do, it could lengthen the current session so that it will pass the 155-day record set in 1963 before the summer recess.

The Commons debate centred on CNR President Donald Gordon.

For nine months and 10 days the $75,000-a-year railway chief has continued in his job on a day-by-day basis described by the Liberals as "sufferance."

The Liberals threatened to contest the government's bill proposing capital expenditures of $178,000,000 for the CNR until the government decided on the lumbering, fisheries and seal-killing operations — will bring in $100,000 this year.

And there is another white man introduction that gives the resident of the north more pocket money — family allowances and old age pension payments.

Mr. Robertson said there is more money in the Arctic and the standard of living of the northern resident is rising.

Dollar value of merchandise sales in the Arctic has increased by almost five times since 1949 — a cumulative rate of growth of almost 15 per cent a year.

"People across the north in total and on the average have more money to spend than they ever had before, and they are buying many more things with it than they ever did before."

FRSH EARNINGS LOWER

The "income in kind" of Eskimos — the fish, seal, caribou and moose of the hunters — is declining but this is being offset by the dollar earnings.

Mr. Robertson, also federal deputy minister of northern affairs, said the opening of new roads and a rail line to the north and the discovery of new minerals meant further development of the economy.

Text of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

There was also progress in provision of health services, education, public utilities and transportation.

The 11 elected and appointed members of the Parliament of the north settled into this community — one of the oldest in the Territories — for two weeks of work on a heavy agenda that includes study of the first step toward formation of a new territory — that one day may become a province.

Junior Essos Take Two From Penticton Red Sox

VERNON (Staff) — Vernon Junior baseball clubs in B.C. Junior Essos, behind the pitching efforts of Reg Main and Lloyd Johnson, trounced Penticton Junior Red Sox 8-1 and 7-6 at Polson Park to establish themselves as solid favorites for their fifth consecutive league championship.

It was the kind of play which have to lose all and Penticton has made coach Clark Marshall's Essos one of the best two standings.

RADIO-GROUNDING EQUIPMENT CHECKED IN VERNON DISTRICT

VERNON (Staff) — A forest service spokesman said today that a check has been made of radio - grounding equipment at the two Vernon district forest fire lookouts.

The move follows injury of a Kamloops forest district lookout employee when a bolt of lightning struck a lookout tower at the height of a recent electrical storm.

An investigation is underway at Kamloops to discover the effectiveness of lightning arrestors on towers, some of which were installed years ago.

The spokesman here said it was felt radio grounding check would minimize danger of a lightning strike on the towers at Tutte Mountain and Silver Star Mountain.

A Lumby forest district spokesman reported that no instructions had been received there to investigate the effectiveness of lightning arrestor equipment.

Volunteer Firemen At Fire Marshall's Course

OYAMA — The Oyama volunteer firemen have recently completed another course of instruction given by the Provincial Fire Marshall's representatives. The need for an agreement such as this was well evidenced last year, when the local fire truck put in many hours of service fighting a local fire and no compensation was available.

In addition to the compensation clause in the agreement, forestry officials have agreed to release volunteer firemen from a fire line within two hours of being notified of a blaze, providing they can secure adequate men to replace them.

During the local fire last year firemen were kept at the fire line for days, leaving the community with few trained men to combat any house fire which could have occurred.

Officials of the Oyama Fire Protection District have recently announced that an agreement has been reached with local forestry officials which will allow for payment for services rendered by the fire truck, in the event of it being used to assist forestry crews on combating forest fires in or near the Oyama protection area.

Penticton, however, has three tied games which, it relayed and won by the Peach City nine could pose a threat to Vernon's high - flying position.

The first game, as the score indicated, was a walkover for the locals.

Essos Don McCall, first man up for Vernon, scored the first run after he singled sharply to right field.

He was driven home on a three - base hit by second - baseman Bill Kralosky.

MISTAKES WON

Second run of the game was scored by Kralosky.

Other Vernon runs were scored by Bruce Kineshanko, in the second, Gordie Nuyens in the third, and in the big fourth inning, four runs by McCall, Rene Vaehon, Kralosky again and pitcher Reg Main.

Penticton's lone run came in the final seventh inning, an effort by left fielder Sam McMaster.

It was another game where errors counted heavily in favor of the winners. Penticton had seven errors in the first game, and Vernon, one. Last Sunday the locals practically won two games on mistakes by the Kamloops Jay Rays infield and outfield.

Reg Main had 13 strikeouts, and Red Sox hurler Terry Wilson racked up six.

In the second contest Vernon again opened the scoring with runs by catcher Gordie Nuyens and centre fielder Richie Shamski.

In the second Bruce Kineshanko scored for Essos. In the third, it was Shamski again and Jack Kawaguchi, and in the fifth inning, Bruce got his second run and Koski added another.

For Penticton Larry Day and Don Carter scored in the second, Steve Dane and Dale Hamilton in the fourth, and Dale Harder and Howie McNeil in the sixth inning.

In the seventh Red Sox strove mightily but just couldn't get anywhere.

Once again the Red Sox were plagued by errors, two in the third and one in the sixth inning. Vernon played errorless ball.

Vernon pitcher Lloyd Johnson had 10 strikeouts and Dale Hamilton five.

The first victory was Reg Main's tenth win against two losses this season.

Fined $25 For No Fire Permit

LUMBY (Correspondent) —

Raphael Edward Michener of Cherryville was fined $25 and costs in court for lighting a fire in a closed season with no burning permit.

He was burning rubbish while clearing land when the fire got away from him and burned nearly two acres before a forest service suppression crew put out the blaze.

He was also forced to pay the cost of subduing the fire.

DON'T DO-IT-YOURSELF

Times have changed, and so has electrical wiring and its many new uses. No longer can a handy man make changes or extensions to your home's permanent wiring system. It's dangerous to life and house and could be costly in terms of equipment damage. Like surgery or dentistry, this is strictly a job for a specialist, and a little knowledge of electricity doesn't make a specialist. So call Interior Industrial Electric Ltd. to check over your wiring and advise what you need to give your home full capacity electric power.

SPEECH FROM THRONE TODAY

Art Replaces Trapping As NWT Income Source

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP) — Art seems to be replacing fur trapping as a main dollar earner in Canada's vast northlands.

Commissioner Gordon Robertson said today in his "speech from the throne" at the opening of the summer meeting here of the Northwest Territories Council that:

"... Fur accounts for only 30 cents of the Eskimo dollar. The other 70 cents comes from such white man-inspired occupations as Eskimo prints and carvings and co-operative ventures in fisheries, lumbering and seal-killing production."

The artistic prints—now in demand the world over—netted the Eskimos $63,000 last year. Soapstone carvings have brought them some $1,000,000 in the last 10 years.

EXPECT MORE INCOME

Mr. Robertson said "resources harvesting programs"

the lumbering, fisheries and seal-killing operations — will bring in $100,000 this year.

And there is another white man introduction that gives the resident of the north more pocket money — family allowances and old age pension payments.

Mr. Robertson said there is more money in the Arctic and the standard of living of the northern resident is rising.

Dollar value of merchandise sales in the Arctic has increased by almost five times since 1949 — a cumulative rate of growth of almost 15 per cent a year.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

The year Edgar Kaplan won the Life Master Individual (1957) he also reported the tournament for the Bridge World magazine.

The Individual is a special type of event where the participants take turns playing with each other, as contrasted with pair and team championships where you play with a partner of your own selection.

Naturally, when you play with a succession of strange partners, some of whom may have wild flights of fancy, almost anything can happen — and does. As Kaplan commented in his report:

"There are three factors in the winning of this event; you must play reasonably well; you need a lot of fortitude; and you must be enormously lucky. Luck is the theme of this article, as it should be in one about the Individual."

After describing several hands in which he was both lucky and unlucky, Kaplan discussed the accompanying hand, which came up near the end of the final session.

"This was the luckiest of all. As south, I hold no brief for my partner's three notrump bid, although it won the tournament for me. I had done my damndest to scream that my hand was worthless except at clubs. But there I was at three notrump.

"I won the heart queen in dummy, East's king falling. I led the nine of clubs (not the seven) to my king, and West put on the ace. West played a low diamond and the jack forced the ace. A diamond turn rode to the king. Now I led a club, finessed the eight, and made ten tricks for a top score."

"You see, I was lucky enough to have Norman Kay on my left, in the West position. Never in his life has Norman been guilty of so bad a play as winning the first club if he could hold up, so the finesse was marked.

"Obviously, the secret of winning Individuals is to make sure that your opponents are more expert than your partners."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

Stellar impulses are highly stimulating now, and you may find your self doing more than your share in meeting current expenditures. Take good care of each and valuable.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that for the next year your innate gifts of leadership and salesmanship could prove highly profitable. Try to capitalize on these traits, since through them you could advance really worthwhile goals. But do be subtle and diplomatic.

Home and family matters will be under good aspects for most of the year ahead and, by late September—which, incidentally, will be an all-around good month—you should note a definite improvement in your job and financial affairs.

Other good periods along these lines: all of November, late December and the first six months of 1962.

August and September will be excellent for travel and romance, but don't look for too much along these lines before then.

A child born on this day will be endowed with fine intelligence and will never be dowered in the face of adversity.

Rovers, Club Victorious In Weekend Softball

Club 13 and Rutland Rovers in the first frame with two chalked up easy victories Sunday in the Kelowna and District Softball League.

At King's Stadium, the Club 13 squad pounded Capri Motors 12-0 behind the two-hit chucking of Norbert Korthals.

Out at Rutland, Joe Ostress and Don McLean teamed up on the mound to give the Rovers a 15-8 triumph over Blue Caps.

Eugene Knorr paced the Club with a three-for-six record at bat while Martin Welder and D. Hanson got the Capri's only hits of the game.

Club 13 racked up nine hits and committed no errors while the losers were charged with three boots.

Gibb Loeth absorbed the loss at Rutland.

Bob Campbell sparked the Rovers' attack with three hits in five trips to the plate including a three-run homer in the second.

SOK'M GAME SET TONIGHT AT ELKS

Second game in the SOK'M Baseball League finals, postponed Friday night due to lack of players on the Rutland team, will be played 6 o'clock tonight at Elks' Stadium.

Only 48 Players Turn Out At Stamps Training Camp

CALGARY (CP) — They say, easy - going Otis Douglas. It happens at every football training camp.

A few players decide they would rather work at a desk from nine to five than knock heads and strain muscles.

Some already have made that choice at McMahon Stadium in the last few weeks, and it has left just 48 players in the Calgary Stampeder camp with the opening of the Western Football Conference season less than a month away.

General manager Jim Finks calls it a simple wedding - not process. But not every one should be expected to stand up to coach Bobbie Dobbs' tough workouts.

Whatever the reason, it has had an overlapping effect on contract - signing and some players still have not made their way to the dotted line.

Among them is quarterback Joe Kapp. Finks says his conversations lately with the University of California star have been about the weather and other non-committal pleasantries. Kapp is attending workouts, but he is staying away from the general manager's office. End Ernie Warlick is in the same situation.

WORKOUTS TOUGH

For those who thrive on rigid conditioning, the last two weeks have been grand. Two a day practices under Dobbs give the impression of a machine unwinding with precision. It has been an abrupt change for veterans who served the last couple of seasons under the more

Patterson's Promoter Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Bolan, promoter of Floyd Patterson's proposed fall heavyweight title defense against Boston's Tom McNeely, charged today that the National Boxing Association's ratings are "asinine."

Bolan replied in a statement to the NBA threat last week that it would strip Patterson of his championship unless he signed within a reasonable time for a defense against a fighter listed in the top six by the NBA.

McNeely, unbeaten in 23 bouts, is not ranked by the NBA. Bolan, president of Championship Sports Inc., has said he hopes to announce a date for the Patterson-McNeely bout sometime this week. The fight tentatively is listed for September in Boston. Bolan has applied for a matchmaker's license in Massachusetts to be able to promote the fight.

Mounties, Giants Close In On Suds

The Tacoma Giants and Vancouver Mounties, two red-hot challengers, swept Pacific Coast League doubleheaders Sunday and stayed close on the heels of the pace-setting Seattle Rainiers, who split a pair with Spokane.

Tacoma beat the hapless San Diego Padres 4-1 and 5-1 and Vancouver overpowered the Portland Beavers 12-5 and 7-4. That left Tacoma 1 1/2 games behind the Rainiers, who beat the Indians 4-3 in the opener at Seattle and lost 9-4 in the nightcap. Vancouver is a game back of Tacoma.

Hawthorn took two from Salt Lake City 12-4 and 4-3 in the 10th inning to round out the day. The league calls a recess in its regular schedule Monday night for the annual All-Star Game with Seattle, as league leader, playing host to players selected from the other seven clubs. The schedule will resume Wednesday.

Gaylord Perry allowed San Diego seven scattered hits as he racked up his ninth victory in 14 starts in the opener at Tacoma. Perry also scored the Giants' initial run in the three-run third inning. Jim Duffalo gave up only two Padre hits in the seven inning second game.

Tacoma took the series 6-1 and San Diego returned home after losing 18 of 22 games on its trip north.

Vancouver pounded a total of 27 hits in the two games at Portland to make it three straight over the Beavers. Portland used four pitchers in each game in a vain attempt to end the slaughter. Four errors were charged against the Mounties in the second game but Portland failed to benefit.

ALLSTAR GAME TUESDAY

Tigers Up There Again But Only By Thin Hair

Those Detroit Tigers are back in first place in the American League and their manager, Bob Scheffing, says it couldn't happen to a more deserving team.

With regular action suspended for the all-star break, the Tigers lead New York Yankees by the slimmest of margins — a mere .001 in percentages. The Tigers and Yankees now join forces for the American League's battle with the National in tomorrow's first all-star game in San Francisco.

With Frank Lary allowing only three singles and winning No. 13 in the opener, Detroit climbed back into first place by beating Los Angeles Angels 1-0 and 6-3 Sunday while New York split with Boston Red Sox. The Yankees won their fifth in a row in the first game, 3-0, behind the five - hit pitching of rookie Roland Sheldon, but dropped the nightcap 9-6.

Three of the five Wimbledon titles were won by Australians. Of the 16 players who figured in the finals on Wimbledon's famed centre court Friday and Saturday, 10 were Aussies.

Drop In Supplies Threat Problem Of E. Germans

By ADAM KELLETT-LONG BERLIN (Reuters)—The East German government appears alarmed at the prospect of a serious drop in supplies of consumer goods in view of coming political events.

A sudden emphasis on shortages became apparent in the special session of the East German Parliament that opened Thursday and observers linked it with plans to sign a peace treaty with Russia by the end of the year.

Friedrich Ebert, mayor of East Berlin and a member of the Communist party politburo, denounced "hitches" in consumer supplies Tuesday as he presented a bill for full elections.

He said shortages result in "anger among wide circles of the population and a negative influence on their political attitude, above all at elections."

CITIZENS WORRIED Friday the party newspaper Neues Deutschland reported a speech by a woman member of Parliament, Mrs. Irene Lehmann, disclosing residents of nearby Hennigsdorf got "worked up" recently over a butter shortage.

(Information Bureau West, an anti-Communist organization in West Berlin, reported Thursday that workers at the Hennigsdorf Locomotive Works sang the Internationale when Communist officials attempted to address them at a meeting last week.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — British Guiana on the doorstep of independence is nearing an election that may lean its government toward Moscow or the West.

Anti-Communists are seeking to check the leftist career of Cheddi Jagan, the East Indian socialist who heads the dominant political force in this steaming colony on the northeast coast of South America.

Veteran observers seem inclined to think Jagan's British claimed to think Jagan's People

 Progressive party will win majority of seats in the Legislative Assembly Aug. 21 and thereby form a government.
 Some of Jagan's political opponents express fear that this would lead to a Cuba-like regime.

Jagan, at 43 minister of tradand industry, calls himself a socialist. He claims a policy of active neutrality.

Under a new constitution effective with the election, the executive council, over which the Crown-appointed governor now presides, will become a council of ministers headed by a premier.

Views Differ On Effect Of Drought On Prairies

Farmers and grain experts of members of the legislature and municipal officials from the central Manitoba drought area expressed different views on the impact of this year's drought on the Prairies. The loss is going up every day.

While some farmers in the Moose Jaw area of Saskatchewan were saying things aren't too bad, Manitoba wheat pool president W. J. Parker declared in Winnipeg that the drought is "quickly becoming a national calamity."

Mr. Parker said thousands of farmers may not harvest any crop and will be "in dire need of financial assistance." He suggested many of them will need extensive liberal credits and "many instances outright grants in aid" from government.

Also in Winnipeg, provincial Agriculture Minister George Hutton Friday night told a meeting of the Moose Jaw Agricultural Society, "We've seen worse years and lived through them."

He said rain in the next two weeks could produce "a pretty fair crop." Most of the farmers estimate that with a good rain before the end of July they could harvest as much as 10 or 15 bushels of grain an acre.

A real optimist, Bill Towriss, president of the Moose Jaw District agricultural board, said crops between Regina and Swift Current are looking "about the best in the province." He said there could still be some 20-bushel harvests "if we had a good rain."

He denied the drought was a calamity and suggested there is still hope for an average crop. In Alberta meanwhile, a varied crop picture is being presented.

East-central and southeastern Alberta is dry, withered and windblown while the western and northern areas are lush, green and healthy.

It has been more than six weeks since a beneficial rain was recorded in the southern area but northern crops have been dampened regularly by showers.

Little relief was forecast for today by the public weather office. Temperatures in the southern prairie regions were expected to range to 90 and 95 degrees in Saskatchewan.

Some thundershowers were forecast for Manitoba and Alberta.

Whatever the merit of the government measures, they have evidently not touched on the heart of Britain's economic problem.

The Guardian warns that the current threatening crisis will not be averted unless confidence in the government can be maintained.

"And it will hardly be maintained if the government is not seen to be taking more constructive action than is implied by its old cries of freedom, incentives and restraint."

These were notions which saw it rather luckily through the 1950s but which are totally inadequate in relation to the problems which can be seen to loom ahead of the British economy now.

But the experts have no difficulty in defining the trouble. Gold reserves have dropped to £900,000,000—below the £1,000,000,000 danger mark; trade is seriously out of balance and foreign money is being shifted out of London banks.

To complicate matters, the individual worker's production rate fell by one per cent last year while his wages rose by two per cent—an indication of difficulties in meeting prices of foreign competitors.

A decade of Conservative remedies has failed to cure the United Kingdom's economic crisis. The Guardian says the Conservative government appears heading for a severe test in the coming months if predictions of a deepening economic crisis are true.

"We are passing through very anxious days," said Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd in Parliament last week.

He was asking the Commons for power to raise the purchase tax and levy a payroll tax on employers without specific parliamentary approval for such moves.

His goal is to reduce the amount of money Britons spend and thus ease the pressure of demand for consumer goods.

PERPLEXING PROBLEM The crisis presents a perplexing problem. So far it has had little impact on the lives of most people. They are earning more than ever before. Their refrigerators are full and many are buying television sets and cars on the instalment plan.

But the experts have no difficulty in defining the trouble. Gold reserves have dropped to £900,000,000—below the £1,000,000,000 danger mark; trade is seriously out of balance and foreign money is being shifted out of London banks.

Entire Belgian Consulate Gets Bum's Rush In Congo

ELISABETHVILLE (AP) — The interior ministry of Katanga province today ordered the entire Belgian consulate staff expelled in an angry flare-up of the Congo province's long feud with the United Nations. But Katanga president Moise Tshombe revoked the order.

The interior ministry reacted after Swedish UN troops Friday night seized Georges Thyssens, a Belgian adviser in Katanga, and expelled him from this capital. One shot was fired in making the arrest and Thyssens' son was beaten.

Informal sources said Interior Minister Godefrid Munongo was angry because the Belgian consulate staff failed to intervene and protect Thyssens, a personal friend. The interior ministry accused a member of the Belgian consulate staff, Charles Muller, of collaborating with the United Nations. He was arrested and expelled today.

DETAIN CONSUL Security police raided the consulate and even detained Consul Jules Herkens for a time. Some documents in the consulate taken.

When Consul-General Henri Casier protested to the interior ministry, he was told that he and his staff must leave. Then Tshombe intervened. He counts heavily on the Belgians for help in running this mineral-rich region of the former Belgian Congo.

The UN in arresting Thyssens accused him of putting the finger on Muller, a special diplomatic adviser to the consulate. The UN said Thyssens told Katanga authorities Muller was a Socialist sent to work with the UN.
